Invitations to holiday parties continue to arrive, along with the first Christmas cards. Trudy and Paul Reynolds will be cocktail-pouring at their Calico Road home on the evening of Dec. 5.

One of the most unique of the holiday parties is the one planned by Kay and Howard Morris for the day after Christmas, when the day after Christmas the party were:

Boxing Day is a British holiday.

lords and ladies entertained their retainers and tenants the day after Christmas, and boxed for them little Christmas treats, of roast beef and puddings and the like, left over from Christmas feast-crowd of 500 peop ing at the castle, with maybe a gift tucked in. Over the years it has become just another holiday and is observed even in Canada.

Inspiration for the party, is the approaching visit of Kay's sister Marion and her husband Bill Redord, who are coming down from Vancouver on Dec. 21.

Dr. and Mrs. George Kaplan are planning two holiday parties, both cocktail-buffets. The first will be on Dec. 17 and the second, which honors the Chester Adlers, Cranberry ginger relish makes a handsome dish to serve with any poultry or meat.

Soften 1 envelope of unflavored gelatin in ¼ cup of cold water. Reserve. Wash 5 cups of fresh cranberries. Place in a saucepan with 2½ cups of sugar and ½ cup of cold water. Cover and cook 8 to 10 minutes, or until skins pop. Do not overcook, as this produces a bitter flavor.

Remove berries from heat. Stir in 3 tablespoons each of grated orange rind and chopped candied ginger, and the softened gelatin. Rinse a 4 cup mold in cold water and shake out as much water as you can, or grease the mold light ly with a bland salad oil. Fil mold. Chill until well set, 8 to 10 hours or overnight. Serves 8 to

Newspapers' Role an Important One

Results of one of the most compr surveys ever made of the impact of newspapers on the American public surprised even the members of the profession - for newspapering is a profession even though there are no degrees tacked on to the end of

Conducted by the Advertising Bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the survey revealed that newspapers reach every segment of the American public, covering all age brackets and play a part in the personal lives of readers at all social lev-

Highlighted in the report of the survey was the finding that the heaviest concentration of newspaper circulation was among higher-income, better-educated, influential

The survey involved 4,826 interviews with persons 15 years of age and over, representing 2,449 households drawn from 622 sampling points.

Summing up the tabulations by interviewers, the ANPA announced that:

People in 86.4 per cent of the 54 million households in continental United States read at least one newspaper on the average work-

In 80.4 per cent of the homes, at least newspaper is bought each day.

Another 5 per cent read one or more daily on a pass-along basis.

or out of every five adults, 21 and nd 72 per cent of the nation's 13 miladividuals between the ages of 15 and ad a newspaper any given weekday. In any given five-day period, 88 per cent of the adults read a newspaper on one or more days.

And, (hold your hats) total newspaper readings by adults on every weekday are 125,500,000 and by teen-agers, another 12,750,000. That augurs well for the nation as it reveals our youngsters are keeping abreast Indicating the substantial nature of these wide-reading habits, the survey revealed that 71 per cent of the time the newspaper reaches the reader by means of regular home delivery-by newspaper carriers usually - and by mail. Others buy their papers at a store, a newsstand or self-service rack.

This regular pattern of home delivery, the ANPA points out, provides the basic context for the social role of a newspaper as a family medium.

Newspapers are pretty much taken for granted by most people just as are the public utilities-light, power, water, telephone. They play such a part in our lives that, like utilities, they are an expected accompaniment to the natural way of life. Like the utilities, few give them a thought unless there is something with which they disagree or, worse, the paper they look for on the front step is not there. On the few occasions this happens, a newspaper looms large in the householder's

Newspaper Week and Newsboys' Day are more than a month in the past, but the findings of the ANPA survey still are a source of gratification to all who put in their day seeing to it that the public is kept informed.

It gives the men and women who labor over a typewriter, linotype, press or many of the countless other tasks that go into even the smallest paper, a sense of doing something really worth while. To be appreciated is the biggest reward anyone can ask.

Figures made public by Shirley Henry, efty clerk, indicate that Palm Springs citizens are really citizens-they are civic minded up to the hilt.

The census lists the population of the city as 13,468 men, women and children.

The city clerk reported that as the deadline for registration for the Dec. 12 redistricting election, 6,773 eligible voters were on the rolls. That constitutes that more than half of the city's permanent inhabitants are voters.

Full Many a Scoop Born Only to Remain Unseen

NEW YORK — We can all I had a scoop, once. Just reathe easier now, and call off as President-elect Eisenhower breathe easier now, and call off the Draft.

Khrushchev's son-in-law, Izvestia's editor Aleksei I. Adzhubei, said after an exclusive interview with President Kennedy, "He made a good impression on me."

It might be a little safer if the President made a good impression on Aleksei's father-in-law. But let's not go lint-picking. Put this happy news together with the fact that Russia has asked to play host to the 1968 Olympics . . . And why blow that good dough on a fallout shelter?

Aleksei doesn't practice the same form of journalism as, say, George Sokolsky. But he knows his onions, as he used to say around the SAE frat house.

"What did the President have to say?" A White House corres-pondent (who had been barred from the seance, of course) asked the blond, rosy-jawed, yokel-looking Russian as he emerged from

It's a great feeling to be possessed of a scoop, to know that you and you alone have a story the whole town or world awaits. It has happened to all of us in this business at one time or an-

Deke Lyman of the N.Y. Times was given a dream of a scoop years ago. Lindbergh liked him, the only newspaperman he liked. He called him and gave him the story that he was taking his wife and family to England to live. He felt he could no longer bear the pressures of the U.S., after the kidnap-death of his son.

The Scoop? Kaput! Deke wrote the story, which the times decided to hold until its final edition. He got an advance copy, caught a trair for his home on Long Island, and luxuriated in reading the masterpiece which was to win a Pulitzer prize. He didn't notice that the commuter who sat next to him, stealing an occasional glance at the not-yet-released Times Deke was reading, dashed off the train at the first stop.

The commuter worked for the N.Y. American. He phoned in the story and the American scooped the Times.

The whole Cabinet-elect from John Foster Dulles down is going to be flown to Wake and brough aboard the Houston by helicopter as we pass there." I rushed to my quarters, closed the door so that Merriman Smith of UPI and Don Whitehead of AP wouldn't see me working, knocked off the story, sneaked down a back lad-der to the communications center, and filed it "urgent." Three days later, at sea, there was a wireless from the New York office of INS. "Oppositions broke important story today new Cabinet being uppicked by heli-copter at Wake. You missed it,

When the Hearst task force in terviewed his father-in-law in Moscow in 1957 it presented its lengthy exclusive report to the Russian censor at midnight. The copy was held up for 12 hours before being sent to New York. Apparently Khrushchev himself hours of sweating it out, we tried to phone the story to our office in London, for re-transmission. We trouble, but in the middle of the Russian voice broke the connec tion with the sharp annous that we were not permitted to do

So the Washington correspond ents will just have to wait for Aleksei's doll of an interview. They console themselves by fig-uring it won't be too earthshaking after all. They think of the time Bill Lawrence, now of ABC then of the Times, was invited to play Burning Tree with President Eisenhower. The boys ganged up on Bill after the round and demanded that he share his scoop

The Owen Coffman Post 519 of the American Legion, in Palm Springs, wishes to thank you and your organization for the part you played in making our Veterans Day a complete success.

This annual event is most important to us because on that day we pay homage to our veterans, living and dead. With our ceremonies we demonstrate our loyalty and respect to our Flag and Country.

Many compliments have been received and our Legion feels that part of this belongs to the many participants in the parade and to those attending the cereonies at the Plaza.

Again, many thanks for that part you played in the Legion observance of Veterans Day.

We are told that world peace will come through world law, administered through the United States sovereignty.

Although this reservation preserves the right of the United States, confronted by a majority in the U.N. which is states to decide if a dispute is within this country's jurisdiction, the Connally amendment has come under considerable fire from those who believe we should let an international court have final say. The world court. This point applies equally to other international treations of Rockford, Belvidere, Beloit or Polo.

But Americans know that different concepts of justice exist throughout the world. American cations.

Road Sign Contract $1,098.50

Halsey Machine and Manufac turing Company of San Bernar-dino, with a bid of $1,098.50, was low for installing a roadside direc-tional sign on U.S. Highway 60-70-99 one-half mile west of its junction with state Sign Route 111 State Highway through Palm Springs), to replace a small sign at this location, according to C. V. Kane, District Engineer.

The sign, constructed to Interstate Highway standards, will be 17½ feet long by feet high and will indicate distance to Banning and Los Angeles.

Traffic will pass through the construction area at all times with as little inconvenience and delay as possible during the three weeks the contractor will have to com-plete the job.
